

World Focus 2006

foreign film series at Oakland University

Sunday September 24 – “The Story of Adele H.”

by Francois Truffaut

The achingly beautiful story of celebrated French writer Victor Hugo's youngest daughter's descent into madness over her obsessive unrequited love for an English soldier. In French with English subtitles.

Location: 124 Wilson Hall, Oakland University

Time: 2:00p.m.

Truffaut with his “Adele H.” star, actress Isabelle Adjani.

Sunday October 1 - “Katzelmacher”

by Rainer Werner Fassbinder

Fassbinder wrote, directed and co-starred in this story of tension that's created when a Greek guest worker moves into a Munich apartment building. In German with English subtitles.

Location: 124 Wilson Hall, Oakland University

Time: 2:00p.m.

The captives discuss their predicament in “The Exterminating Angel.”

Sunday October 15- “The Exterminating Angel”

by Luis Buñuel

A surrealist masterpiece where guests at an elegant dinner party find themselves mysteriously unable to leave their host's house...for days on end. In Spanish with English subtitles.

Location: 124 Wilson Hall, Oakland University

Time: 2:00p.m.

Sunday October 29 - “The Eternal Present” by Otto Buj

A brain twist about a young man who takes a job as an obituary writer and finds that the people he comes in contact with are the ones that are dying. Canadian filmmaker Buj will attend the screening and be available for q&a.

Location: The International Academy on E. Square Lake Road in Bloomfield Hills, MI

Time: 2:00p.m.

A moment of self-reflection in “The Eternal Present.”

Questions / Comments:

Alysa Hunton

Oakland University

248.364.6106

hunton@oakland.edu

www2.oakland.edu/mals/

A discussion with panelists and the audience will take place immediately following. All films are free of charge. Made possible by support from Oakland University's Modern Literatures and Languages Department and Master of Arts in Liberal Studies Program.